

Calendar

FRIDAY | 5.30

by Various

May 27th, 2008 12:00 AM

[Festival]

Lights, Camera, Brooklyn!

The BK gets competitive

Film festivals are popping up like popcorn these days, so we can understand if you've got a little fest fatigue at this point. But before you go entirely numb, consider the Brooklyn International Film Festival, a cinematic competition that brings directorial talent from all over the world to New York. The opening-night film, Able Danger, is from Brooklyn native Paul Krik and was shot at the café bookstore Vox Pop. A tale of conspiracy, intrigue, and star-crossed romance, the film adds a new twist to an old formula by wedding the 9/11 Truth movement to classic film noir. An after-party and concert follow. At 8, through June 8, Brooklyn Lyceum, 227 Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, check for full schedule, venues, and pricing, $25 for opening night EUDIE PAK

<http://www.brooklynfilmfestival.org>